Dear Families,

I hope you've had a lovely week. It has been another very busy week at Knights Enham! The children have continued to engage enthusiastically with their new learning themes while also taking part in several key events.

This week, our focus has been Anti-Bullying Week. The children have taken part in a range of activities exploring what bullying is, how to recognise it, and how they can use their voices to stand up for others. We also discussed how bullying can sometimes occur because people are seen as "different" — which is why we celebrated Odd Socks Day. The message behind this day is that being "odd" or different is something to be proud of — it makes us unique, and just like our odd socks, it can be fun too!

On Tuesday, a big thank you to all the families who joined us for the Remembrance Service. The children made us very proud as they joined in the two-minute silence with great respect. If you haven't yet seen our beautiful poppy display and the remembrance flag flying high between the two schools, please do take a moment to visit the courtyard and have a look.

Finally, on Friday, we celebrated Children in Need. Thank you so much for your generous donations towards this special cause. It was wonderful to see all the children dressed in their pyjamas, showing their support and school spirit.

I hope you all have a wonderful weekend, and we look forward to seeing you again soon.

Warm regards,

Mr Whitehouse & all staff

Online Safety

With the Online Safety Act now in force it's no surprise to see a lot of focus and scrutiny on tech companies, their features and safety settings being so prominent in the media, particularly safety settings failures. However, that shouldn't detract from the fact that safety settings are important; they're not perfect and never will be, but they are there for a reason. Some of the more popular social apps are listed below, with links to their privacy and parent controls. They are all from the Internet Matters website:
